Drawing Traditional Buildings - CORE

The term "elevation" refers to an orthographic projection of the exterior (or sometimes the interior) faces of a building, that is a two-dimensional drawing of the building's façades. As buildings are rarely simple rectangular shapes in plan , an elevation drawing is a first angle projection that shows all parts of the building as seen from a particular direction with the perspective flattened.

Types of drawings for building design - Designing ...

Blueprint. Blueprints were first introduced in the 19th century, to allow the reproduction of documents, and in particular drawings used in industries such as construction. Blueprints are generally recognisable from their blue background and light-coloured lines. They create an accurate negative reproduction of the original using a contact print process on light-sensitive sheets.
