Horace's Carpe diem consists of an invitation for the reader to appreciate the day in all its facets, in every moment, without thinking about tomorrow. It is the most famous of Horace's odes. It has the tone of a conversation happening in front of a stormy sea, the dialogue is between a mature man, made wise by age and experience, and a girl with a Greek name, Leucònoe (with a white mind!), she is in a hurry to live her future, on which she has projected many expectations.

Carpe diem, (Latin: "pluck the day" or "seize the day") phrase used by the Roman poet Horace to express the idea that one should enjoy life while one can. Carpe diem is part of Horace's injunction "carpe diem quam minimum credula postero," which appears in his Odes (I.11), published in 23 bce. It can be translated literally as "pluck the day, trusting as little as possible in the next one."

Horace (65 BC–8 BC) - The Odes: Book I

"Tu ne quaesieris" ("Do not ask") is the most famous of the odes of the Roman lyric poet Horace, published in 23 BCE as Poem 11 in the first book of Horace's collected "Odes" or "Carmina". The poem takes the form of a short rebuke to a woman, Leuconoë, who is worrying about the future, and uses agricultural metaphors to urge us to embrace the pleasures available in everyday life rather than relying on remote aspirations for the future.
