Understanding Intercultural Communication by Jane Suderman

One of the most common communication barriers would be the difference in culture. Culture is defined as a set of learned patterns of thought and behaviour shared and passes down by a group of people and is ever changing and dynamic. (Suderman J 2007) Culture differs in every races, states and countries.

Communication barriers - UKEssays.com

Intercultural communication is an approach to relations among members of these groups that focuses on the recognition and respect of cultural differences, seeks the goal of mutual adaptation leading to biculturalism rather than simple assimilation, and supports the development of intercultural sensitivity on the part of individuals and organizations to enable empathic understanding and competent coordination of action across cultural differences.
